Billy Osterman

Lead Recruiter
Aurora, Illinois, United States

Summary

A career in recruiting is a career in lifelong learning, and I get to learn about people--what they do, what they've done, what drives them, their dreams and aspirations, how they think, and lots more. I get to learn a lot about myself in the process, too.

Not every interaction ends with the desired result, but I always hope that the people I work with, speak to, or have some personal and professional interaction with gain something from the experience, at least as much as I do. The best part of my job is when I get to be part of someone's journey and see the positive impact of our interactions in their life.

I work for a company called Kin Insurance that is changing the way home insurance is being done--not change for the sake of change, but to be what home insurance should be. We're using technology to make smarter decisions and that allows us to focus on our customers and what matters to them.

In the end, it's all about making positive, meaningful impacts in the lives of others. LFG!
